Climate, Health and Equity: A Policy Series for the City of LA

JOIN US FOR POLICY SERIES OF VIRTUAL SESSIONS ON CREATING CLIMATE EQUITY FOR LOS ANGELES

In this 3 part series, we will explore the need for equitable climate policies that address health, jobs, affordable housing, and the climate crisis. The Climate Crisis is a threat and public health emergency, and the well-being of millions has been harmed, let's work together to prevent further harm and co-create resilient thriving communities.

Hosted by:

WHY NOW? The City of LA launched the Climate Emergency Mobilization Office to urgently engage our Los Angeles residents in this transition towards an equitable climate and energy policy. We need to address and create equitable climate solutions with economic and environmental justice principles as our guard rails. If not, we may never achieve our climate and sustainable development goals. This series is a springboard to integrate your input into a final report and also share with you why Climate Equity is key. The final report will then go to our Climate Emergency Mobilization Commission and City Council.
